

I do not want the FCC to override Indiana's current "no call" law with one that would be more lax. I appreciate the efforts of our attorney general to free us from intrusive telemarketing phone calls.

Since signing up on Indiana's no call list I may have several weeks without receiving a telemarketing call. Before the list I would receive some each week. If there is to be a federal law, it should be a minimum which each state could make stronger if desired.
